The Book Brewers club is a book discussion group founded by Watauga Library's Owen Gray and Ross Cooper. Owen chose "Book Brewers" to indicate an off-the-library site, "grown-ups" book discussion group, especially geared to those who might not be able to attend one of the existing library book clubs due to work schedules or other daytime-hours commitments. We've met at several local eateries, and, although most people choose to order a meal and beverage to accompany the meeting, anyone attending is free to not so partake, but to feast on the discussion! The group has been generously supported by the Watauga Friends of the Library, which donated starter funds for book purchases for this book club. The group is now meeting every other month, in odd-numbered months, on the third Wednesday of those months. We have been meeting of late at Pepper's Restaurant in Boone, in the Shadowline Shopping Center (... usually next to the salad bar). We generally have about eight people in attendance, including a number of regular participants, who always bring forth a fascinating discussion! New members are always welcome. Each year in November, we take nominations for the six books to be the next year's book choices. Past selections have included nonfiction, historical fiction, Pulitzer-prize winning novels, biographies, and more. Many of our choices have had an "international" flavor, with either fictional settings and characters or real-life connections to both the many cultures of the United States and many countries around the globe.
